From Awareness to Integration: Elevating DEI/JAB in Occupational Therapy

3:00 pm–4:15 pm

Shirley A. Wells, DrPH, OTR, FAOTA

As global communities increasingly embrace Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, Justice, Access and Belonging (DEI/JAB), the journey must go beyond mere awareness and symbolic gestures. In this interactive presentation, Wells will explore how occupational therapy practitioners can lead the way in integrating DEI/JAB principles into their practice, moving from celebration to systemic change.

Shirley A. Wells, DrPH, OTR, FAOTA

Attendees will gain insights on fostering cultural shifts, promoting institutional reforms, and ensuring accountability. By deeply embedding DEI/JAB values into all facets of care, we can create a more just and inclusive environment where every individual has the opportunity to thrive. The inaugural Dr. Lela A. Llorens Award of Excellence for Diversity Equity & Inclusion is not to be missed.

The Future is Now: Shaping Tomorrow's Breakthroughs With Today's Actions

11:30 am–12:15 pm

Alyson Stover, MOT, JD, OTR/L, BCP

Occupational therapy stands at the intersection of innovation, client-centered care, and holistic health. It is a profession that doesn't just adapt to change—it drives it. Our focus on improving quality of life and enabling participation across all areas of life makes us the solution to some of the most pressing issues in health care. Join AOTA President Alyson Stover as she highlights how the future is being written now. Will you be part of creating it?

change in the lives of those dealing with anxiety or caring for others who do. Through authentic storytelling, validation, practical insights, and community building, he hopes to be a catalyst for healing and support.

Shattering Glass Ceilings: Thriving in the Shadows of Underestimation and Collective Diversity

2:00 pm–2:45 pm

Arameh Anvarizadeh, OTD, OTR/L, FAOTA

As we journey towards Vision 2030, it's time to reimagine the role of occupational therapy within a rapidly evolving global landscape. This inaugural presidential address explores the power that often thrives in the shadows of underestimation, and how embracing communal diversity strengthens our collective identity. Through these themes, we'll delve into the transformative potential of our field, harnessing the synergy of science, systems changes, and inclusion to forge a visionary future for occupational therapy.

International Breakfast: Creating Our Own Future Through Intentional and International Advocacy and Engagement

9:00 am–10:30 am

Samantha Shann, WFOT President, MSc, PGCert, Dip COT (UK), FRCOT.

Like every health profession, occupational therapy is impacted by the changing world and health environment. Occupational therapists need to understand what is impacting the health and social landscape today and in the future so we can meet the opportunities available to us as a profession.

By considering wide-reaching social, environmental, and systemic factors on individuals, communities, and populations' health and functioning, the presentation will reflect on the World Federation of Occupational Therapists (WFOT) work to continually increase occupational therapy's visibility and impact through ongoing interactions with member organisations, governments, and United Nations (UN) agencies, including the World Health Organization (WHO).

Drawing on personal and professional experiences in government, organisational, and service-level development, Samantha will explore how we can work globally, regionally, and nationally at all levels to ensure inclusive policies and initiatives provide equitable access to occupational therapy for all.

Precision Occupational Therapy Through Data Driven Decision Making

11:15 am–12:30 pm

Roseann Schaaf, PhD, OTR/L, FAOTA

Occupational therapy practitioners use multiple sources of information to solve complex problems and promote client participation and quality of life. It is essential that the data we collect is relevant and thorough; and that we organize and interpret these data to create interventions that are personalized, meaningful, and effective. Precision Occupational Therapy is a solution that provides an occupation-centered, science-driven, and theory-based approach using data to design tailored interventions and measure outcomes.

Schaaf will show how employing this strategy led to the recognition of occupational therapy as an evidence-based profession and, in turn, improved payment for, and greater access to, occupational therapy services for underserved populations. In this Eleanor Clarke Slagle lecture, Schaaf challenges practitioners and researchers in all areas of practice to embrace Precision Occupational Therapy using data driven decision making to create evidence for occupational therapy.
